Spring Full Term (15 week courses): March 17, 2008

Spring First Session (7 ½ week courses): February 11, 2008

Spring Second Session (7 ½ week courses): April 3, 2008

Course Description:

Introductory graduate course focusing on the psychology of victims and the social context of victimization. Various types of victimization including violent, sexual, psychological, child abuse and domestic partner abuse will be studied. Theoretical etiological and social-psychological factors will be presented. A special emphasis will be placed on the evaluation and treatment of Post Traumatic Stress Disorder and the theoretical connections between early and sustained experiences of trauma as an antecedent to criminal behavior.

Prerequisite Knowledge or Courses: Graduate Status

Course Objectives:

- Students will learn to interpret and define the social construction of victimization in American society as reflected in popular culture and mass media.
- Students will become familiar with the common psychological effects of trauma and the most common mental health diagnoses found in persons who experience victimization.
- An overview of a variety of treatment techniques used to ameliorate trauma specific conditions will be introduced and evaluated.
- Students will gain a working understating of the commonalities between victims and offenders and will consider the complexities of working with individuals who are both.
- While most victims of violent crime are men, special populations of victims will be evaluated, including children, women and cultural minorities.

The psychological and schematic effects of working with traumatized individuals will be evaluated along with popular theoretical conceptions of vicarious trauma.

Methods of Instruction: FP-6525 is a blended, on-line/on-campus course.

Content Areas: American society today is obsessed with victimization. While theories about early childhood trauma are often presented as “explanations,” for criminal behavior, these theories are not generally supported empirically. While America imprisons more criminals than any other country, we as a society, do little to support crime victims. Forensic practitioners must constantly be aware of the essential dichotomy between victim and offender and offender as victim. Trauma as a psychological diagnosis remains an extremely common but largely misunderstood phenomenon. In the history of psychological theory, the development of a shared phenomenology of trauma and subsequently appropriate clinical technique is a recent event. An exploration of trauma and victimization is essential to the development of a professional forensic perspective. Forensic practitioners will spend substantial time working with offenders who are themselves experienced both as victims and those who victimize.

Academic Dishonesty/Plagiarism

In an effort to foster a spirit of honesty and integrity during the learning process, Argosy University request that the submission of all course assignments represent the original work produced by that student. All sources must be documented through normal scholarly references/citations and all work must be submitted using the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, 5th Edition (2001). Washington DC: American Psychological Association (APA) format. Please refer to Appendix A in the Publication Manual of The American Psychological Association, 5th Edition for thesis and paper format. Students are encouraged to purchase this manual (required for some courses) and become familiar with its content as well as consult the Argosy University catalog for further information regarding academic dishonesty and plagiarism.

Additionally, Argosy University considers resubmission of a work produced for one course in a subsequent course or the submission of work done partially or entirely by another to be academic dishonesty. It is the student's responsibility to seek clarification from the instructor regarding how much help may be received in completing an assignment, exam or project and what sources may be used.

Scholarly writing: The faculty at Argosy University is dedicated to providing a learning environment that supports scholarly and ethical writing free from academic dishonesty and plagiarism. This includes the proper and appropriate referencing of all sources. You are responsible for maintaining an electronic copy of any work submitted, because you may be asked to submit your course assignments through "Turnitin," (www.turnitin.com), an online resource established to help educators develop writing/research skills and detect potential cases of academic dishonesty. Turnitin compares submitted papers to billions of pages of content and provides a comparison report to your instructor. This comparison detects papers that share common information and duplicative language.

ADA Policy

It is AU/San Francisco Bay Area Campus policy not to discriminate against qualified students with a documented disability in its educational programs, activities or services. If you have a disability-related need for accommodations in this class, contact the Campus Director of Student Services who serves as the Disability Services Coordinator. Once the determination of reasonable accommodations has been made, an approved Letter of Accommodation is given to the student. The student is then responsible for presenting and discussing a copy of the Letter of Accommodation with faculty, when requesting needed services. Accommodations are effective once the instructor has received the approved Letter of Accommodation. Accommodations are not retroactive. Students should promptly notify the Disability Services Coordinator of any problems encountered in receiving the agreed-upon accommodations.

Your instructor is responsible for delivering this curriculum in a format that will ensure the objectives are met and measured. This can be accomplished in a variety of ways depending upon the experience, orientation, technological acumen, emphasis and preferences of the instructor as well as the resources available. Your instructor is also required to ensure that the course Outline include details regarding assignments and method of instruction.
